Genesis-Leviticus

All indicators may be pointing to a rise in interest rates, but home sellers need not fear. No matter what's going on with the economy and the real estate market, there is a way to get a good price for your house if you know how. That's where Elizabeth Razzi comes in. Fresh on the heels of her well-reviewed The Fearless Home Buyer, she now uses her vast knowledge and industry savvy to guide readers on the flip side of the real estate coin. Broken down into six manageable parts, The Fearless Home Seller covers every aspect of the home-selling process. In her trademark conversational style, Razzi tells you how to prepare your house for sale, describes the care and feeding of brokers (and the possibilities of selling without them), offers a timeline of what to expect when your house is on the market, and even gives advice on how to say goodbye to your home. From placing classified ads to hiring movers, Razzi demystifies and simplifies what can be an overwhelming undertaking for any home owner. And with the odds now favoring the buyer in the high-stakes game of real estate, the timing of this book could not be more perfect. The Commercial and Financial Chronicle

SUPERANNO With prices escalating monthly in the most popular areas, buyers need to look carefully before they leap. This superb new guide by award-winning journalist and real estate expert Elizabeth Razzi is an excellent place to find the information they need to make a wise home purchase. Taking a consumer advocate approach to buying a home, Razzi tackles all of the important financial issues, and explains what a home buyer (particularly a first-time buyer) needs to know about selecting brokers, agents, and mortgage bankers.

The New American Botanist and Florist

Cities have experienced an unprecedented rate of growth in the last decade. More than half the world's population lives in urban areas, with the U.S. percentage at 80 percent. Cities have captured more than 80 percent of the globe's economic activity and offered social mobility and economic prosperity to millions by clustering creative, innovative, and educated individuals and organizations. Clustering populations, however, can compound both positive and negative conditions, with many modern urban areas experiencing growing inequality, debility, and environmental degradation. The spread and continued growth of urban areas presents a number of concerns for a sustainable future, particularly if cities cannot adequately address the rise of poverty, hunger, resource consumption, and biodiversity loss in their borders. Intended as a comparative illustration of the types of urban sustainability pathways and subsequent lessons learned existing in urban areas, this study examines specific examples that cut across geographies and scales and that feature a range of urban sustainability challenges and opportunities for collaborative learning across metropolitan regions. It focuses on nine cities across the United States and Canada (Los Angeles, CA, New York City, NY, Philadelphia, PA, Pittsburgh, PA, Grand Rapids, MI, Flint, MI, Cedar Rapids, IA, Chattanooga, TN, and Vancouver, Canada), chosen to represent a variety of metropolitan regions, with consideration given to city size, proximity to coastal and other waterways, susceptibility to hazards, primary industry, and several other factors.

The Official Railway Equipment Register

Supplement to the Official Journal of the European Communities

In the past two decades, the New York-New Jersey-Connecticut region has prospered into one of the world's leading economies. But the benefits of this economic resurgence have been uneven, leaving many behind and resulting in problems that could curtail the region's future prosperity. The Regional Plan Association's Fourth Regional Plan is an ambitious assessment that reviews the most persistent problems and provides a guide to correcting them. Topics discussed include a crisis of housing affordability, overburdened and deteriorating infrastructure, vulnerability to climate change, and a pervasive distrust in government. The plan offers solutions including how to bring nearly two million jobs to the region by 2040, while promoting shared prosperity, well-being and sustainability across the region. The Fourth Regional Plan continues the Regional Plan Association's tradition of providing concrete ideas for improving the tri-state region. Highlights include radically restructuring the MTA and Port Authority to support creation of a modernized and expanded subway and regional rail network; significantly increasing the availability of housing; and expanding the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative to fund climate change initiatives. This highly visual, comprehensive plan will help elected officials, policymakers, and advocates guide any region to a more equitable, sustainable, healthy, and prosperous future.
