The double-entry journal strategy is easy to implement but should be used frequently to be effective. Students write in their own language about what they are learning. For teachers and students, entries influence learning by revealing problems, questions, connections, and concerns. Although it is a strategy most commonly found in language arts, social studies, science, reading, and math, students in elective classes such as "mythology and Computer sciences," "Shop," and fine arts can benefit as well. Double-entry journals serve a variety of purposes. Students record their thoughts and feelings or reactions to text excerpts or short films, online research, and/or to their own questions and areas of interest relating to the area being studied Our notebooks are preformatted with two columns already laid out with a topic and date header atop each page. The left column is labeled "From the text" as a simple prompt reminder that the left column is for referencing the page numbers and source material being studied. In the left column of the double-entry journal, students should reference vocabulary words, short quotations, or other passages from or features of the text that interest them or that elicit a strong response. They record the word, quotation or brief passage, either verbatim or in paraphrased form. In the right-hand column, (which we have labeled "From Your Mind") students record their reactions, feelings, interpretations, or other responses to the text segments/features they have selected. How does the double-entry journal help students? Some examples: To react to a writer's main idea, topic development, argument, etc. To keep track of their learning during question and answer sessions To look at specific lines and passages for clarity of meaning To interpret a line of poetry or to decide how they feel about a character (words, actions, etc.) To explore a topic or idea. (By being asked to explain what specific words or phrases mean, students will be able to reference reasons and evidence to support their views, their understandings.) If you like this cover design, you can find it on other notebook interiors! Search on our brand name 'SmARTly Bound' to find the same cover design on other interior formats. Learning Journals in the K-8 Classroom is the first comprehensive presentation of how to use academic journals effectively for elementary-level instruction. The text outlines the theoretical foundations for using learning journals and provides step-by-step suggestions for implementing them in every content area and at all levels of elementary instruction. Learning journals provide resources and support for reading aloud, independent reading, mini-lessons, cooperative study, individual research, workshops, and the portfolio system. The type of interactive writing students do in learning journals helps them explore complex ideas in the content areas, using their own strengths of analysis and response; the journals then become resources for future learning, group discussions, individual conferences, learning assessment, reports, and progress. Four introductory chapters show teachers how to create their own journals, introduce journals to students, integrate them with cooperative study, and use them for assessment. Additional chapters focus on the individual curriculum areas of literature, writing, mathematics, science, and social studies. The text includes sample entries from student journals at all grade levels and in every content area, and appendices of annotated resources to support journaling and interviews with teachers who use journals in their classrooms.

Cesar Chavez is known as one of America's greatest civil rights leaders. When he led a 340-mile peaceful protest march through California, he ignited a cause and improved the lives of thousands of migrant farmworkers. But Cesar wasn't always a leader. As a boy, he was shy and teased at school. His family slaved in the fields for barely enough money to survive. Cesar knew things had to change, and he thought that--maybe--he could help change them. So he took charge. He spoke up. And an entire country listened. An author's note provides historical context for the story of Cesar Chavez's life.

Throughout history, some books have changed the world. They have transformed the way we see ourselves - and each other. They have inspired debate, dissent, war and revolution. They have enlightened, outraged, provoked and comforted. They have enriched lives - and destroyed them. Now Penguin brings you the works of the great thinkers, pioneers, radicals and visionaries whose ideas shook civilization and helped make us who we are. Thoreau's account of his solitary and self-sufficient home in the New England woods remains an inspiration to the environmental movement - a call to his fellow men to abandon their striving, materialistic existences of 'quiet desperation' for a simple life within their means, finding spiritual truth through awareness of the sheer beauty of their surroundings.
