A biographical dictionary, a regional survey, and a geographical directory, Who's Who in the Arab World provides the background information essential for a full understanding of this fast-changing part of the world so increasingly in the news today. The first section serves as a biographical dictionary, offering 6,000 sketches of outstanding persons in 19 Arab countries from all fields. These sketches are indexed conveniently by country and profession. The second part contains a historical background of this diverse racial grouping, their languages, their ancient cultures, religions and a history of oil development in the Middle East. The third part deals with certain particularities and inherent conflicts of the region.

This directory contains information on key officials of the secretariat, agency and mission personnel, as well as leaders of related organizations. Also included is a descriptive overview of the United Nations System: organizational structure; member states; permanent missions in New York, Geneva, and Vienna; previous presidents of the General Assembly; principal officers; and depository libraries. All 3,000 entries include the following biographical information: full name, position/title, business address, nationality, languages spoken, date and place of birth, marital status, career positions, education, professional interests, publications, awards or honors, avocational interests, and residence address. Two biographical indexes -by organization and nationality -- provide easy access to all entries.

A diverse group of academics, activists, officials and rebels contribute chapters about different aspects of conflict in the western Sudanese region of Darfur. These chapters discuss the origins and evolution of the conflict, the various ways in which the conflict has been understood and misperceived (both locally and internationally), the profoundly gendered nature of the conflict, the status of those involved with regard to the Sudanese and international law, and the ongoing struggle for peace in the region. A substantial appendix reproduces UN, ICC, and (many for the first time in English translation) Arabic-language documents to trace the history of the conflict. The book also includes a chronology of major events in Sudan.

A Kerma Ancien Cemetery in the Northern Dongola Reach

This is an authentic and sensitive record of the work of a British woman educationalist in the Sudan in the 1940s, and forms an unrivalled source for the development of girls' education in an African country before the wind of change blew through the continent. As Controller of Girls' Education, Dr. Beasley undertook many gruelling tours of inspection, venturing to the remotest parts of the country, and her account provides the modern reader with a wealth of evidence not easily found elsewhere. Her highly readable narrative also gives a more general picture of the Sudan at that time, with fascinating observations on a country and people fondly recalled and a way of life fast disappearing. The editor, Janet Starkey, has included many excerpts from Dr. Beasley's original diaries that illuminate the text, and her extensive and precise annotation and appendices provide essential background information. This is the first volume in a new series whose aim is the publication of materials from private archive collections relating to oriental and African countries, dealing in particular with British contributions to the history of those regions.

Sudan Democratic Gazette

Political Handbook of the World annually provides up-to-date political information on all the world's countries in a balanced, accurate and comprehensive manner. A singular and authoritative reference work for nearly 70 years, each new volume builds on the research and scholarship of previous editions, offering rare insight into stories making headlines, judiciously outlining contemporary conflicts and analysing current foreign policy within the informed context of past events and decisions. It is considered to be the single-volume reference work of choice for libraries, diplomats, academic faculties, international corporations, and others needing accurate, timely information.
