Paul Celan's Encounters with Surrealism

Max Frisch's candid story of his affair with a young woman illuminates a lifetime of relationships. Casting himself as both subject and observer, Frisch reflects on his marriages, children, friendships, and careers; a holiday weekend in Long Island is a trigger to recount and question events and aspects of his own life, along with creeping fears of mortality. He paints a bittersweet portrait that is sometimes painful and sometimes humorous, but always affecting. Emotionally raw and formally innovative, Frisch's novel collapses the distinction between art and life, but leaves the reader with a richer understanding of both.

War Diary

A major discovery: The lost diary of a great mind—and an intimate, deeply moving study of grief The day after his mother's death in October 1977, the influential philosopher Roland Barthes began a diary of mourning. Taking notes on index cards as was his habit, he reflected on a new solitude, on the ebb and flow of sadness, and on modern society's dismissal of grief. These 330 cards, published here for the first time, prove a skeleton key to the themes he tackled throughout his work. Behind the unflagging mind, "the most consistently intelligent, important, and useful literary critic to have emerged anywhere" (Susan Sontag), lay a deeply sensitive man who cherished his mother with a devotion unknown even to his closest friends.

Post-World War II poet, translator, essayist and lecturer, Paul Celan (1920-70) was influenced by French Surrealism and Symbolism. Author of Der Sand aus den Urnen (1948), Von Schwelle zu Schwelle (1955), Sprachgitter (1959), Lichtzwang (1970) and Schneepart (1971), he also translated literature from Romanian, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Russian, Hebrew and English into German. --

Derrida, an Egyptian

An enthrallingly expansive family saga set against the backdrop of the collapse of East German communism, from a major new international voice * Over 450,000 copies sold in Germany alone * Rights sold in 20 countries * Winner of the German Book Prize * A PW "First Fiction" pick * In Times of Fading Light begins in September 2001 as Alexander Umnitzer, who has just been diagnosed with terminal cancer, leaves behind his ailing father to fly to Mexico, where his grandparents lived as exiles in the 1940s. The novel then takes us both forward and back in time, creating a panoramic view of the family's history: from Alexander's grandparents' return to the GDR to build the socialist state, to his father's decade spent in a gulag for criticizing the Soviet regime, to his son's desire to leave the political struggles of the twentieth century in the past. With wisdom, humor, and great empathy, Eugen Ruge draws on his own family history as he masterfully brings to life the tragic intertwining of politics, love, and family under the East German regime.

German and European Poetics After the Holocaust

Shortly before his death in 2004, Jacques Derrida expressed two paradoxical convictions: he was certain that he would be forgotten the very day he died, yet at the same time certain that something of his work would survive in the cultural memory. This text by Peter Sloterdijk - one of the major figures of contemporary philosophy - makes a contribution of its own to the preservation and continuation of Derrida's unique and powerful work. In this brief but illuminating text, Sloterdijk offers a series of recontextualizations of Derrida's work by exploring the connections between Derrida and seven major thinkers, including Hegel, Freud and Thomas Mann. The leitmotif of this exploration is the role that Egypt and the Egyptian pyramid plays in the philosophical imagination of the West, from the exodus of Moses and the Jews to the conceptualization of the pyramid as the archetype of the cumbersome objects that cannot be taken along by the spirit on its return to itself. 'Egyptian' is the term for all constructs that can be subjected to deconstruction - except for the pyramid, that most Egyptian of edifices, which stands in its place, unshakeable for all time, because its form is the undeconstructible remainder of a construction that is built to look as it would after its own collapse.

Malina

Poetry. Bilingual Edition. Translated from the German by David Young. Cover art by the author's wife, Gisele Celan-Lestrang. "Celan's English language readers, and readers to come, will be deeply grateful for this new translation of his second book. I admire David Young's clear and respectful introduction, generous to his colleagues in Celan translation, and helpful in providing a broad context for this poetry; and I admire, especially, his faithfulness in spirit as he becomes a 'water-diviner' of Celan's work. Young is a subtle, trusting reader of the ways this poet of poets took—as he had to—to create a completely new poetry."—Jean Valentine
This collection is the second of three by Celan that David Young is undertaking to present in their entirety. He works at present as an editor at Oberlin College Press.

Read Free Herzzeit Ingeborg Bachmann Paul Celan Der Briefwechsel

An inventive, unique, and extraordinarily moving debut memoir that pieces together the fascinating story of one woman's family across twentieth-century Russia, Ukraine, Poland, and Germany. Katja Petrowskaja wanted to create a kind of family tree, charting relatives who had scattered across multiple countries and continents. Her idea blossomed into this striking and highly original work of narrative nonfiction, an account of her search for meaning within the stories of her ancestors. In a series of short meditations, Petrowskaja delves into family legends, introducing a remarkable cast of characters: Judas Stern, her great-uncle, who shot a German diplomatic attaché in 1932 and was sentenced to death; her grandfather Semyon, who went underground with a new name during the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia, forever splitting their branch of the family from the rest; her grandmother Rosa, who ran an orphanage in the Urals for deaf-mute Jewish children; her Ukrainian grandfather Vasily, who disappeared during World War II and reappeared without explanation forty-one years later—and settled back into the family as if he'd never been gone; and her great-grandmother, whose name may have been Esther, who alone remained in Kiev and was killed by the Nazis. How do you talk about what you can't know, how do you bring the past to life? To answer this complex question, Petrowskaja visits the scenes of these events, reflecting on a fragmented and traumatized century and bringing to light family figures who threaten to drift into obscurity. A true search for the past reminiscent of Jonathan Safran Foer's Everything Is Illuminated, Daniel Mendelsohn's The Lost, and Michael Chabon's Moonglow, Maybe Esther is a poignant, haunting investigation of the effects of history on one family.

Bachelorarbeit aus dem Jahr 2015 im Fachbereich Germanistik - Neuere Deutsche Literatur, Note: 1,3, Universität Duisburg-Essen, Sprache: Deutsch, Abstract: Diese Abwehrmechanismen sind nach dem Freudschen Strukturmodell der Psyche

allgemein als Reaktion des Ichs auf die eigene, mangelnde Kompromissfähigkeit zwischen Es und Über-Ich definiert und verfolgen somit das Ziel eines „Schutz[es] des Ichs gegen Triebansprüche“. Aufgrund der fehlenden Operationalisierung sind Abwehrmechanismen – und das ist wissenschaftlich schade aber deutungshypothetisch von Vorteil – empirisch schwer nachzuweisen, erweisen sich aber dadurch auch als leistungsstarkes Analysewerkzeug zur Interpretation unbewusster Strategien der Kompensation in den Figuren der Literatur. Dabei geht es maßgeblich im Sinne eines literaturpsychologischen Ansatzes darum, „aus dem verworrenen Murmeln des Unbewußten und des Es, über die inneren Konflikte, die aus einem Bereich der Stille und der Dunkelheit her auflauern, einen klar wissenschaftlichen Diskurs auszuarbeiten“. Die Motivation zu diesem Thema entstand aus der Lektüre der epischen Literatur Ingeborg Bachmanns und Patrick Süskinds und dem dabei konstatierten Zusammenhang in der psychologischen Figurenkonstruktion beider Autoren. Häufig finden sich in diesen Werken deprivierte und isolierte Protagonisten, die aufgrund der äußeren Umstände Neurosen entwickeln. Dabei bedienen sie sich unter anderem verschiedener Abwehrmechanismen. Da die Theorie über eben diese „eine der fruchtbarsten und am meisten, auch außerhalb der Psychoanalyse, akzeptierten Teile der psychoanalytischen Theorie“ ist, möchte ich sie für meine Literaturanalyse verwenden, um aufzuzeigen, inwieweit sich diese Strategien der Abwehr in den Figuren der Werke beider Autoren äußern.

What is sleep? How can this most unproductive of human states--metaphorically called death's shadow or considered the very pinnacle of indolence--be envisioned as action and agency? And what do we become in sleep? What happens to the waking selves we understand ourselves to be? Written in the spring of 2013, as the Egyptian government of President Mohammed Morsi was unravelling in the face of widespread protests, The Book of Sleep is a landmark in contemporary Arabic literature. Drawing on the devices and forms of poetry, philosophical reflection, political analysis, and storytelling, this genre-defying work presents us with an assemblage of fragments which combine and recombine, circling around their central theme but refusing to fall into its gravity. "My concern was not to create a literary product in the conventional sense, but to try and use literature as a methodology for thinking," El Wardany explains. In this volume, sleep shapes sentences and distorts conventions. Its protean instability throws out memoir and memory, dreams and hallucinatory reverie, Sufi fables and capitalist parables, in the quest to shape a question. The Book of Sleep is a generous and generative attempt to reimagine possibility and hope in a world of stifling dualities and constrictions.

The Body Never Lies: The Lingering Effects of Cruel Parenting

Now a New Directions book, the legendary novel that is “equal to the best of Virginia Woolf and Samuel Beckett” (New York Times Book Review) In Malina, originally published in German in 1971, Ingeborg Bachmann invites the reader into a world stretched to the very limits of language. An unnamed narrator, a writer in Vienna, is torn between two men: viewed, through the tilting prism of obsession, she travels further into her own madness, anxiety, and genius. Malina explores love, "deathstyles," the roots of fascism, and passion.

Die 25 repräsentativen Interpretationen des Bandes unternehmen erstmals eine Annäherung an das kommunikative Phänomen ‚Brief‘ mittels präziser, methodisch vielfältiger Einzellektüren. In ihrer Summe skizzieren sie eine Geschichte der deutschsprachigen Briefkultur vom 16. bis zum späten 20. Jahrhundert. Aus interdisziplinärer Perspektive werden Textualität, Materialität und Medialität des Briefs ebenso reflektiert wie das Problem der Kontextualisierung, die kommunikativ-rhetorische Funktion, der historisch-dokumentarische Wert sowie die Archivierungs- und Editions-geschichte.

Perspectives on Gender in Post-1945 German Literature

Here are the letters between Nelly Sachs (1891 - 1970), recipient of the 1966 Nobel Prize for Literature, and the great German-speaking poet Paul Celan (1920 - 1970). Their correspondence lasted from 1954 until Celan's death by suicide. Sachs died the day Celan was buried.

Three Paths to the Lake

An examination of childhood trauma and its surreptitious, debilitating effects by one of the world's leading psychoanalysts. Never before has world-renowned psychoanalyst Alice Miller examined so persuasively the long-range consequences of childhood abuse on the body. Using the experiences of her patients along with the biographical stories of literary giants such as Virginia Woolf, Franz Kafka, and Marcel Proust, Miller shows how a child's humiliation, impotence, and bottled rage will manifest itself as adult illness—be it cancer, stroke, or other debilitating diseases. Never one to shy away from controversy, Miller urges society as a whole to jettison its belief in the Fourth Commandment and not to extend forgiveness to parents whose tyrannical childrearing methods have resulted in unhappy, and often ruined, adult lives. In this empowering work, writes Rutgers professor Philip Greven, "readers will learn how to confront the overt and covert traumas of their own childhoods with the enlightened guidance of Alice Miller."

Exil und Literatur

Masterarbeit aus dem Jahr 2013 im Fachbereich Germanistik - Neuere Deutsche Literatur, Note: 1,0, Universität Bern (Philosophische Fakultät), Sprache: Deutsch, Abstract: Die Hauptfragen, die sich durch die ganze Arbeit ziehen werden, lauten folgendermaßen: Welche Rolle spielt die Jahreszeit-Metaphorik bei der Suche nach einer angemessenen Sprache in der Lyrik Bachmanns nach dem Holocaust? Welche Parallelen oder Gegensätzlichkeiten lassen sich im Vergleich zu Celans Gedichten herauslesen und welche Bedeutung spielt ihre Dichter- beziehungsweise

Liebesbeziehung dabei? Diese Fragen sollen im Verlaufe der Arbeit, in der alle vier Jahreszeiten in einem separaten Kapitel unterkommen, eingehend analysiert und immer mit Blick auf das Celansche Werk untersucht werden, das dem Briefwechsel zufolge einen immensen Eindruck auf Bachmann gemacht hat. Spätestens nach der von der Germanistikforschung langersehnten Veröffentlichung des Briefwechsels zwischen den beiden Lyrikern im Jahr 2008 weiß man, welche intensive Verbindung sie sowohl in Bezug auf die literarische Tätigkeit als auch privat zueinander hatten. Zentrales Ziel dieser Arbeit wird es also sein, die geistige Verwandtschaft der beiden Autoren anhand ausgewählter Gedichte, in denen die Jahreszeiten, aber auch der Wechsel von Finsternis und Licht thematisiert werden, noch verstärkt hervorzuheben und zu prüfen, inwiefern sie sich in ihrem dichterischen Schaffen beeinflusst haben könnten. Der Briefwechsel wird dabei zur Analyse herangezogen, da er einen Schlüssel zur Poetik beider Autoren liefert und als Quelle für wichtiges, biographisches Wissen dient. Der Briefwechsel ermöglicht es, die These aufzustellen, Celan habe der sechs Jahre jüngeren Studentin sein poetisches Programm der Holocaust-Erinnerung und der Trauerarbeit vorgegeben und seine Gedichte seien bedeutende Prätexte und Inspirationsquellen für Bachmann gewesen. Sowohl die Briefe als auch die gegenseitig gewidmeten Gedichte und Gedichtzyklen liefern wichtige Belege dafür und werden daher im ersten Kapitel eingehend analysiert. Im weiteren Verlauf der Arbeit soll die ältere Forschungsliteratur vor 2008 betrachtet werden, um sie mit den neuen Erkenntnissen, die der Briefwechsel liefert, zu ergänzen oder gegebenenfalls zu revidieren. Die einzelnen Kapitel werden dabei unter Beachtung der Jahreszeiten in vier Teile gegliedert. Abschließend folgt eine Zusammenfassung, welche die daraus resultierenden Ergebnisse noch einmal aufgreift und deutlich macht.

Speaking the Unspeakable in Postwar Germany

In Times of Fading Light

Crisis and Form in the Later Writing of Ingeborg Bachmann

These two fragments of novels, Ingeborg Bachmann's only untranslated works of fiction, were intended to follow the widely acclaimed Malina in a cycle to be entitled Todesarten, or Ways of Dying. Although Bachmann died before completing them, The Book of Franza and Requiem for Fanny Goldmann stand on their own, continuing Bachmann's tradition of using language to confront the disease plaguing human relationships. Through the tales of two women in postwar Austria, Bachmann explores the ways of dying inflicted upon the living from outside and from within, through history, politics, religion, family, gender relations, and the self. Bachmann's allegiance to the twin muses of memory and history, as well as her perception of fascism as not being limited to the context of the war but also existing within the intimate relations of everyday life between husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, psychiatrists and patients' are supremely evident in The Book of Franza. Here, Bachmann follows a woman who escapes from a sanatorium and, after years of silence, sends her brother a cryptic telegram. Rightly suspecting that she has fled her sadistic husband -- a renowned Austrian psychiatrist whose intimate relations have merged with his studies of concentration camps -- her brother finds her in their childhood home. Together they travel to Egypt, where Franza slowly begins to regain her bearings. But Franza's desire to cleanse herself by journeying into the heart of the desert's void ends in tragedy, as she becomes the victim of a horrible act of violence. Unlike Franza, who attempts to flee her past but fails, the heroine of Requiem for Fanny Goldmann makes no attempt to escape her history. This novel tells of the demise of a Viennese actress who is manipulated by a younger, ambitious playwright to advance his career. Deception follows disloyalty; the final treachery comes when the playwright portrays her in a novel, which secures his fame and, in Fanny's eyes, robs her of her future. Caught in a perpetual stasis, Fanny suffers in total obscurity, as her present is stolen from her as well. Whether analyzing the place where the self begins and the power of history ends or the ways in which women are forced to be complicit in their mistreatment at the hands of men, Bachmann's critical approach to the human psyche is unparalleled. Mesmerizing and profound, The Book of Franza and Requiem for Fanny Goldmann constitute the final evidence that Ingeborg Bachmann is the most important female German-language writer of the postwar period.

Ingeborg Bachmann

Ingeborg Bachmann und Paul Celan

Ingeborg Bachmann (1927-73), one of the most acclaimed German-language poets of the post-war period, famously turned away from the lyric during the 1960s. Publicly declaring that she had stopped writing poetry, Bachmann began work on the prose Todesarten cycle that would dominate the last decade of her life. During a period of personal breakdown in the 1960s, however, she privately continued to write in verse, and the publication of selected drafts in 2000 threw new light on her compositional methods in this period.

The Thirtieth Year

Day after day the Russian asylum-seekers sit across from the interpreter and Peter - the Swiss officers who guard the gates to paradise - and tell of the atrocities they've suffered, or that they've invented, or heard from someone else. These stories of escape, war, and violence intermingle with the interpreter's own reading:

a history of an ancient Persian war; letters sent to his son 'Nebuchadnezzasaurus,' ruler of a distant, imaginary childhood empire; and the diaries of a Russian singer who lived through Russia's wars and revolutions.

In the Storm of Roses

Die große Biografie einer der bedeutendsten deutschsprachigen Dichterinnen Seit dem tragischen Tod Ingeborg Bachmanns am 17. Oktober 1973 in Rom überlagern Mythen und Legenden das Leben der gefeierten Schriftstellerin. Doch wer war die Frau hinter der strahlenden Ikone, die ihr Privatleben eisern zu verteidigen wusste und der nur wenige Freunde wirklich nahe kamen? In ihrer Biografie zum 40. Todestag macht Andrea Stoll das Drama einer Frau und Künstlerin lebendig, die ihr Schreiben nie nur als Berufung, sondern immer auch als Zwang, Obsession, Verdammnis und Strafe empfunden hat. Weltbürgerin und Heimatsuchende in einem, über Jahre gefangen in einem Dickicht hochkomplizierter Liebesbeziehungen und Freundschaften, allen voran zu Paul Celan, Hans Werner Henze und Max Frisch, hat Bachmann doch immer auch um ihre persönliche Freiheit gerungen und ihre literarischen Ziele kompromisslos verteidigt. Wie sehr Bachmann ihrer Zeit voraus war und welchen Preis sie dafür bezahlen musste, führt uns diese Biografie in eindrucksvoller Weise vor Augen.

Mourning Diary

Austrian writer Ingeborg Bachmann (1926-73) is recognized as one of the most important novelists, poets, and playwrights of postwar German literature. As befitting such a versatile writer, her War Diary is not a day-by-day journal but a series of sketches, depicting the last months of World War II and the first year of the subsequent British occupation of Austria. These articulate and powerful entries--all the more remarkable taking into account Bachmann's young age at the time--reveal the eighteen-year-old's hatred of both war and Nazism as she avoids the fanatics' determination to "defend Klagenfurt to the last man and the last woman." The British occupation leads to her incredible meeting with a British officer, Jack Hamesh, a Jew who had originally fled Vienna for England in 1938. He is astonished to find in Austria a young girl who has read banned authors such as Mann, Schnitzler, and Hofmannsthal. Their relationship is captured here in the emotional and moving letters Hamesh writes to Bachmann when he travels to Israel in 1946. In his correspondence, he describes how in his new home of Israel, he still suffers from the rootlessness affecting so many of those who lost parents, family, friends, and homes in the war. War Diary provides unusual insight into the formation of Bachmann as a writer and will be cherished by the many fans of her work. But it is also a poignant glimpse into life in Austria in the immediate aftermath of the war, and the reflections of both Bachmann and Hamesh speak to a significant and larger story beyond their personal experiences.

Paul Celan, Nelly Sachs

Speaking the Unspeakable in Postwar Germany is an interdisciplinary study of a diverse set of public speeches given by major literary and cultural figures in the 1950s and 1960s. Through close readings of canonical speeches by Hannah Arendt, Theodor W. Adorno, Ingeborg Bachmann, Martin Buber, Paul Celan, Uwe Johnson, Peter Szondi, and Peter Weiss, Sonja Boos demonstrates that these speakers both facilitated and subverted the construction of a public discourse about the Holocaust in postwar West Germany. The author's analysis of original audio recordings of the speech events (several of which will be available on a companion website) improves our understanding of the spoken, performative dimension of public speeches. Speaking the Unspeakable in Postwar Germany emphasizes the social constructedness of discourse, experience, and identity, but does not neglect the pragmatic conditions of aesthetic and intellectual production—most notably, the felt need to respond to the breach in tradition caused by the Holocaust. The book thereby illuminates the process by which a set of writers and intellectuals, instead of trying to mend what they perceived as a radical break in historical continuity or corroborating the myth of a "new beginning," searched for ways to make this historical rupture rhetorically and semantically discernible and literally audible.

Montauk

Komotau, the Czech Republic, late summer, 1945. Four women--seventy-year-old Johanna, her two daughters Hanna and Maria, and Hanna's daughter Anna--are ordered by the new Czech authorities to leave their homes and assemble with other Germans at the local train station. They are given thirty minutes--the "wild expulsions" of Sudeten Germans have begun. But where is Anna? Witnessing the revenge lynching of SS and suspected collaborators on her walk home, she arrives in Komotau to find her family gone. The trek takes the older women via Munich, then Dresden and Magdeburg, to an outpost in the far northwest of the Soviet zone where they settle as farm laborers. Once united again, their hope of one day returning to the heimat--homeland--is both a source of strength and a burden, choking attachments to new surroundings and neighbors. This conflict will prove to be the story of their lives, as well as both the joy and ruin of Anna's son. A tale of four generations told in Reinhard Jirgl's unique and subversively expressive idiom, The Unfinished plays out between the ruins of Nazi Germany and the rise and fall of communist East Germany, the birth of the Berlin Republic, and the shadow of a new millennium.

The Book of Franza and Requiem for Fanny Goldmann

The Golden Horde is a definitive work on the Italian revolutionary movements of the 1960s and '70s. An anthology of texts and fragments woven together with an original commentary, the volume widens our understanding of the full complexity and richness of this period of radical thought and practice. The book covers the generational turbulence of Italy's postwar period, the transformations of Italian capitalism, the new analyses by worker-focused intellectuals, the student movement of 1968, the Hot Autumn of 1969, the extra-parliamentary groups of the early 1970s, the Red Brigades, the formation of a radical women's movement, the development of Autonomia, and the build-up to the watershed moment of the spontaneous political movement of 1977. Far from being merely a handbook of political history, The Golden Horde also sheds light on two decades of Italian culture, including the newspapers, songs, journals, festivals, comics, and philosophy that these movements produced. The book features writings by Sergio Bologna, Umberto Eco, Elvio Fachinelli, Lea Melandri, Danilo Montaldi, Toni Negri, Raniero Panzieri, Franco Piperno, Rossana Rossanda, Paolo Virno, and others, as well as an in-depth introduction by translator Richard Braude outlining the work's composition and development.

Correspondence

"Ingeborg Bachmann is recognized as one of postwar Germany literature's most important novelists, poets and playwrights Nearly 20 years after her death, during an estate sale in Vienna, 15 episodes of the popular Viennese radio drama The Radio Family were discovered. Remarkably, they happened to be written by Bachmann herself, a writer on the show just after she graduated from university. The Radio Family was a popular radio soap opera broadcast in the American sector of occupied Vienna in the 1950s. The programme focused on a middle-class Viennese family and their daily life - from their birthday parties and holiday plans to profiteering and currency fraud in the commercial sector. All 15 scripts have now been compiled and masterfully translated, revealing an early and significant piece of Bachmann's body of work while also offering a rare glimpse into Vienna's quotidian history"--Publisher's description.

Herzzeit

The best introduction to the work of Paul Celan, this anthology offers a broad collection of his writing in unsurpassed English translations along with a wealth of commentaries by major writers and philosophers. The present selection is based on Celan's own 1968 selected poems, though enlarged to include both earlier and later poems, as well as two prose works, The Meridian, Celan's core statement on poetics, and the narrative Conversation in the Mountains. This volume also includes letters to Celan's wife, the artist Gisèle Celan-Lestrange; to his friend Erich Einhorn; and to René Char and Jean-Paul Sartre—all appearing here for the first time in English.

Psychogramme der Kompensation. Unbewusstes Abwehrverhalten in der epischen Literatur Ingeborg Bachmanns und Patrick Süskinds

Ingeborg Bachmann und Paul Celan. Lange war ihre Liebe ein großes Geheimnis, jetzt ist sie dokumentiert. Der Briefwechsel zwischen Ingeborg Bachmann und Paul Celan, zwei der bedeutendsten deutschsprachigen Dichter, ist das bewegende Zeugnis zweier Menschen, die sich liebten und gegenseitig verletzten, die einander brauchten und doch nicht miteinander leben konnten. Fast zwanzig Jahre lang kämpfen sie in ihren Briefen um die Liebe und Freundschaft des anderen, wiederholt herrscht Schweigen, immer wird der Briefwechsel wiederaufgenommen – bis es 1961 endgültig zum Bruch kommt.

Die Veröffentlichung der Korrespondenz Bachmanns und Celans ermöglicht neue wissenschaftliche Zugriffe auf das Werk der Autoren. Vor diesem Hintergrund zeigt der Band vielfältige Korrelationen zwischen Biographie und Dichtung auf: Die Briefe flankieren den literarischen Umgang der Autoren mit der Erfahrung des Totalitarismus. Darüber hinaus sind sie poetologisch zu beschreibende Texte, die im Kontext des Werkganzen gelesen werden können.

Selected Poems

We defy augury. There's a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be now, 'tis not to come the readiness is all. Under the sign of Hamlet's last act, Hélène Cixous, in her eightieth year, launched her new book--and the latest chapter in her Human Comedy, her Search for Lost Time. Surely one of the most delightful, in its exposure of the seams of her extraordinary craft, We Defy Augury finds the reader among familiar faces. In these pages we encounter Eve, the indomitable mother; Jacques Derrida, the faithful friend; children, neighbors; and always the literary forebears: Montaigne, Diderot, Proust, and, in one moving passage, Erich Maria Remarque. We Defy Augury moves easily from Cixous's Algerian childhood, to Bacharach in the Rhineland, to, eerily, the Windows on the World restaurant atop the World Trade Center, in the year 2000. In one of the most astonishing passages in this tour-de-force performance of the art of digression, Cixous proclaims: "My books are free in their movements and in their choice of routes [] They are the product of many makers, dreamed, dictated, cobbled together." This unique experience, which could only have come from the pen of Cixous, is now available

Letters to Felician

"Paul Celan (1920-1970), one of the most important and challenging poets in postwar Europe, was also a prolific and highly idiosyncratic translator. His post-Holocaust writing is inextricably linked to the specific experiences that have shaped contemporary European and American identity, and at the same time has its roots in literary, philosophical and scientific traditions that range across continents and centuries surrealism being a key example. Celan's early works emerge from a fruitful period for surrealism, and they bear the marks of that style, not least because of the deep affinity he felt with the need to extend the boundaries of expression. In this comparative and intertextual study, Charlotte Ryland shows that this interaction continued throughout Celans lifetime, largely through translation of French surrealist poems, and that Celans great oeuvre can thus be understood fully only in the light of its interaction with surrealist texts and artworks, which finally gives rise to a wholly new poetics of translation. Charlotte Ryland is Lecturer in German at St Hughs College and The Queens College, Oxford."
